CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM BEST HERE IN YEARS

High Class Entertainment Provided For Three Day Program Next Week.

The program circulars of the Radcliffe Chautauqua, which is scheduled here for three days beginning next Thursday, indicate that a very interesting and profitable time is in store for those who will take advantage of the occasion, made possible by a number of public-minded citizens, who are sponsoring the affair.

The entertainment numbers on the first day will be presented by the Portor Vochestral Quartet, which has entertained Chautauqua audiences for many years with an almost unbelievable variety of music, vocal and instrumental, classic and popular. This splendid organization will appear both afternoon and night to open the chautauqua with just the sort of music which everyone likes, and which is long remembered after the chautauqua is over.

Second Day
On the second day, the entertainments will be provided, both afternoon and night, by The Charles Hanna Players, composed of a remarkably clever company of four people, giving extraordinarily fascinating programs of dramas and sketches. During the afternoon session, the program will consist of miscellaneous playlets, and at night will be given the three-act comedy called "Her Own Money." This great play is full of sentiment, although throughout the play runs a continuous thread of humor which will be appreciated by every one in the audience.

The closing day of the chautauqua will see a double entertainment program, one part of which will be given by Miss Charlotte Chamberlin, cartoonist and bird-warbler. Miss Chamberlin is an artist whose work on hundreds of chautauqua programs has won her the highest praise. She is an unusually clever manipulator of colored crayons, and her pictures appear before her audience with amazing rapidity.

Kellam Duo
The second part of this double program of the last day will be presented by The Kellam Duo, one of the most versatile duos on the platform, featuring readings, impersonations in costume, instrumental duets, and the beautiful piano-accompanied, played by Miss Margaret McOscar, rated among the leading women accompanists of this country. Miss Chamberlin and the Kellam Duo will be heard both afternoon and evening of the last day of the chautauqua.

This program, given in connection with the correlated lecture series which provides the rest of the chautauqua events, is one of the best that has ever been scheduled in this vicinity, and every man, woman and child should have a season ticket in the fullest extent.

Season tickets are now on sale at Weaver's, Cook's, Naugle's, Eckert's, People's Drug Store and Keet's Drug Store.

MISSING STATE TROOPER, KNOWN HERE, IS FOUND

State police had been trailing them across the country.

Wallace B. Haerter, husband of the woman, today let it be known he was willing to take his wife back because of their little girl.

Goucher left the radio station May 23 without giving word to his superior officers. The woman disappeared the same day. State police located the pair in Wheeling and St. Louis, but they moved.

SPEAKER HERE ACTS IN PLAY

Dr. Frederick Poole, most active member of the Philadelphia Board of Theater Control, who delivered the address at the annual ladies' night banquet of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce several months ago, will play the role of the "doctor" with Madame Olga Petrova in "Hurricane," Friday and Saturday evenings of this week.

The announcement is of particular significance since it was predicted that "Hurricane" would draw down the maledictions of the censors and might even be stopped entirely. Instead of that it has won their enthusiastic praise.

Mr. Poole's interest in the play and particularly in the part of the doctor led Madame Petrova, who is both author and star of "Hurricane," to invite him to essay the role for the last two evenings of the engagement.

In his Chamber of Commerce address, Doctor Poole spoke of his duties as a member of the board of censors in Philadelphia, telling of several deletions required in several plays and of other shows being entirely stopped.

61 HIGH SENIORS GIVEN DIPLOMAS; CHAPEL CROWDED

Rev. A. B. Bunn Van Ormer Delivers Commencement Address; Musical Program.

Brua Chapel, crowded with parents, relatives and friends of the students, witnessed the graduation of 61 young men and young women, seniors at the Gettysburg High School, Wednesday evening.

As though to show the seniors that only by hard work and plenty of perspiration can the really worthwhile things of life be attained, nature visited one of her choicest brands of hot weather upon the assemblage, and the auditorium was afire throughout the exercises with fans and handkerchiefs, as the hot and perspiring audience endeavored to keep itself cool.

Mark Twain Text

Although he disclaimed being a humorist, despite the fact that on several occasions he had the audience in an uproar of mirth and the fact that he chose a line from Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" as his text, the Rev. A. B. Bunn Van Ormer, of Huntingdon, a graduate of Gettysburg College, now preaching at Huntingdon and teaching at Juniata College, delivered one of the most interesting, entertaining and instructive commencement addresses heard by a high school senior class in recent years.

Rev. Mr. Van Ormer had an inimitable manner of reaching his audience, using humorous stories, trite examples and sound doctrine, and his listeners forgot the heat as he wove the word-fabric of a capable and instructive commencement address. His subject was "What Makes the Difference," and his text was taken from the famous fence whitewashing chapter of "Tom Sawyer," in the words of the aptful Tom, "When you do a thing because you must, it's work."

The speaker proceeded to tell the difference between work and play, using his text as the definition of work and his own words, "When you do a thing because you want to, it becomes play," as the definition of play.

Work And Play
Declaring that the mental attitude of a person can make for the difference between work and play, Rev. Mr. Van Ormer expressed the belief that "we can bring our mind into subjection by our will, as a result of which all work would become play."

He said the board of education "deserves something besides knocks all of the time," and said he hoped that by their presence at the chapel the parents and friends of the seniors "wish to honor the school board for what it has done for these young men and young women about to graduate, that by your presence you wish to honor the efforts of the teachers through the 12 years of the graduates' education, and finally you wish to honor the students themselves for striving and working to attain their present enviable position."

Continuing with his definition of the difference between work and play, Rev. Mr. Van Ormer asserted, "No man can do work slovenly and feel satisfied with the result."

Choosing Life's Work
Upon the seniors he urged the need of choosing a worth-while work in life, one "that you will want to do," and one "that will abide and bring joy and happiness to others as well as to yourselves." He advised the need of first having a proper mental attitude toward work, adding that with a proper outlook and attitude "more easily it is possible to turn all work into play."

After pointing out to his hearers that many people look upon work as a curse, the speaker said he liked to think of work in the words of a poem. "This is my blessing, not my doom." In closing, Rev. Mr. Van Ormer left the seniors the words of Theodore Roosevelt, "The greatest sport the world affords is aggressive fighting for the right."

The valedictory address, "In Cherry Blossom Time," given by Miss Mildred Deardorff, Cashtown, and the salutatory by Miss Cordelia Hartman, Gettysburg R. D., on the subject, "Adams, First in the Line," showed the results of careful preparation. Both addresses were well presented, and bore testimony to the studiousness of the seniors.

3 Kidnap Student, Beat Him, Charge

Spartanburg, S. C. June 4.—Three Spartanburg men were arrested here Wednesday on a charge of entering Textile Institute, abducting James Lindsay, a student, at the point of a pistol and beating him into unconsciousness.

Fred Gregory and James Stafford are charged with assault and battery and Sam Wyatt is accused of assault and battery and pointing a pistol. They were released on bond.

The abduction took place, it is alleged, while Lindsay, whose home is in Oklahoma, was rehearsing for a play to be given at the institute. The intruders announced that the student had insulted three young women and that they were going to take him to their homes and make him apologize.

Later Lindsay was found in a dazed condition. He said he had been beaten several times.

MAN KILLS EIGHT FAMILY MEMBERS

(By Associated Press.)

Hamilton, Ohio, June 4.—Becoming violently insane Lloyd Russel early today shot and killed eight members of his brother's family, according to police who arrested him after he had shot and slightly wounded himself. His victims were his brother's five children, his mother, his brother and sister-in-law.

Dorothy, a 10-year-old niece, saved herself by hiding in bed when she heard shots. Russel then turned the weapon on himself shooting himself in the left lung. After the shooting he riddled the bodies of several of the children with shots. He had two guns and fired in all about 50 shots. Police said he talked incoherently about a mortgage on the house and said he would shoot the pictures off the wall. Russel is about 43 years old.

Most of his victims were sleeping.

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR MARSHALL

Body Rests in Casket in His Quaint Old Home; Services To Be Characteristic Of Man.

(By Associated Press.)

Indianapolis, June 4.—Humble as he was in life, so was Thomas R. Marshall today in death. The body of the nation's war-time vice president and Indiana's 27th Governor might have fittingly laid in state in the Capitol building where once he held high office. Instead, it rested in his quaint old home here awaiting simple services to be held for him today.

The Scottish Rite of which Mr. Marshall was an honored member will conduct the funeral ceremony. The casket will be taken to Crown Hill cemetery, there to be placed in a receiving vault, until Mrs. Marshall determines upon its final resting place.

No pomp or pageantry will mark the services, Mrs. Marshall having expressed the wish that the passing be attended by the simplicity so characteristic of her husband.

This morning the casket rested amid a bank of floral tributes bearing notable names, among them President and Mrs. Coolidge, General John J. Pershing and Justice Reynolds of the Supreme Court. There also were the offering of others, many of them being from old friends.

FIVE INJURED

felter, it is said, was on his way to Harrisburg by way of York Springs, and was crossing the Lincoln Highway, when the West Virginia car ran into the rear end of his machine.

According to persons who visited the scene of the accident afterward, marks on the highway indicate that the Carson car struck that of the Hanover man, pushing it to the side of the road and virtually wrecked both automobiles.

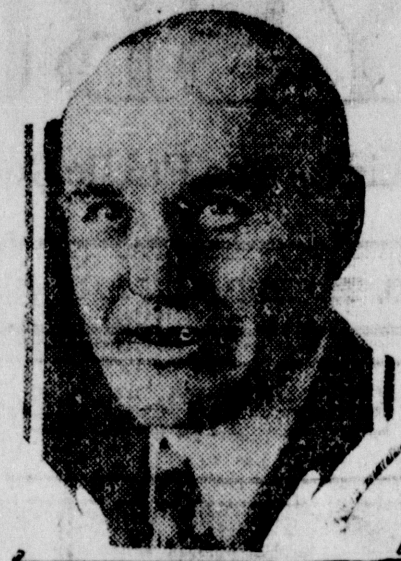

Walter Maloney, of Hopewell, Bedford county, was one of the first persons to arrive on the scene of the accident. He put in a call for the Hanover ambulance, which responded bringing the injured West Virginians to the Warner hospital here where they were admitted at noon.

At the hospital it was stated that Miss Carson was the most seriously injured, and that she would be kept under observation for several days to determine if she was hurt internally. Her back is injured, and she is suffering considerably from shock, according to hospital authorities, but she will remain at the institution under observation for a few days.

Her parents and Mrs. Aultz are said by hospital attendants not to be seriously injured. They are expected to be discharged within a day or two. Passing motorists took Frounfelter's party back to their homes.

According to information at the hospital, Mrs. Aultz is the wife of a Charleston physician. She was accompanying the Carsons to Philadelphia to see the latter's son graduate as a doctor the latter part of this week.

MERCURY HITS 99 WEDNESDAY

Heat Prostrations Reported Over Country; Electrical and Wind Storms in Middle West.

Old Sol climbed to new high records during the last twenty-four hours when he pushed the mercury in long slender tube to 99 degrees, while Gettysburgians sweltered under the hottest rays of the sun for the year. While the weather man reported 100 degrees on Tuesday, yesterday seemed more stifling in view of the lack of fair breezes, that cooled Tuesday's offerings.

Swimming parties were augmented yesterday and this morning several thousands of fans, ardent advocates of the beach-lounger, were seen rolling their way to Marsh Creek Heights and several other popular bathing resorts.

There were no reports of any serious consequences as a result of the heat wave here, although many prostrations were reported elsewhere.

Chicago, June 4.—Fourteen persons were reported dead Wednesday in wind and electrical storms, some approaching tornadoes, in western states. The casualties stood at:

Five in Minneapolis and vicinity.
Four in Iowa.
Four in Nebraska.
One at Bozwan, Montana.

Thirty Are Injured
In addition two drownings, one at Chicago and one at Duluth, were included in the lists of casualties.

Thirty persons were reported injured in Minnesota, and the damage in that state was estimated at $2,500,000.

Minneapolis and the remainder of Hennepin county and Anoka and parts of Carver and Scott counties felt the brunt of the storm, while St. Paul and points east of there experienced a far less violent visitation.

New York, June 4.—Eastern states sweltered Wednesday under a heat wave which in three days has caused thirty-nine deaths in the country and more than 100 prostrations. In the eastern states twelve have died and more than 60 have been overcome.

DR. H. W. A. HANSON TALKS TO SENIORS OF HANOVER HIGH

Dr. H. W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg College, who delivered the address at the thirty-second annual commencement of the Hanover High school in the Hanover Opera House Tuesday evening, left with the 79 graduates a message of true Americanism, delivered in a most interesting and effective style. A capacity audience attended the exercises which brought to a close the graduating activities of the class of 1925.

The stage presented a fine appearance with its abundant decorations of flowers, peonies, roses and long stemmed gladiolas, palms and ferns. The class, which is the largest to have graduated thus far from the Hanover High School, practically filled the stage on which were also Superintendent S. M. Stouffer, Dr. Hanson and the Rev. F. S. Bromer, pastor of Grace Reformed church, who had the opening invocation.

There has never been any great genius without a spice of madness.

Musical Program

Musical numbers on the program were varied and entertaining. All were under the direction of Miss Lucille Henry, who brought to a close her connections with Gettysburg's public schools as supervisor of music at the commencement exercises. Musical selections consisted of numbers by the high school orchestra; a trumpet solo, "Baccarat," from "Tales of Hoffman," Charles Rogers; piano solo, "Deux Polonaise," Alfred Gilbert; a cantata, "The Building of the Ship," by a group of 20 singers; violin solo, "Canzonetta," Paul Reaser; and the singing of the class song, by the seniors.

Paul Reaser, president of the class, was master of ceremonies. Rev. J. Harold Mumper, Baltimore street, gave the invocation and benediction.

Miss Helen L. Cope, Baltimore street, member of the local D. A. R. chapter, presented two prizes, one of $10 to Miss Jeannette Horner for the best essay written in the D. A. R. contest, and one of $5 to Miss Mildred Deardorff as a second prize. Honorable mention in the essay writing contest was given Miss Cordelia Hartman.

Brady S. Armor, retiring president of the Gettysburg High School alumni association, presented Miss Deardorff, the valedictorian, with a prize of $15 for having the highest average, and a second prize of $10 to Miss Hartman, salutatorian, for the next highest average.

Awarding of little mementoes to the seniors was in charge of a group of "pirates," consisting of Miss Louise Ramer, Miss Jeannette Horner, Miss Edith Clare, Frank Gardner, John Mickle and Sylvester McKenrick. This part of the evening's exercises evoked much laughter from the seniors and the audience as the "pirates" remembered the eccentricities of their classmates with suitable trinkets.

Richard Sheads had a record of perfect attendance throughout his school career.

A. B. Plank, president of the school board, presented the diplomas.

SHANGHAI RIOTS BREAK OUT ANEW

Two Agitators Killed by Police; Foreign Woman Dies of Injuries; Stores Are Closed.

Shanghai, June 4.—Shanghai was an armed camp Wednesday. Two outbreaks in the morning caused police to open fire, resulting in the death of two persons and the injury of many others.

Banks were closed, store fronts were boarded, food was being rationed out by shopkeepers, hotels and stores were searched for arms, while troops of several nations attempted to restore order after a series of uprisings started last Saturday by Chinese students protesting against the prosecution of strikers in Japanese-owned spinning mills here.

Students Bury Their Dead
Chinese students withdrew momentarily from their crusade against foreign rule this afternoon and retired to their area of the city to bury with Confucian ceremonies several of their confederate dead who fell in the riots. But a demonstration was planned immediately after the funerals.

After the funeral service student speakers in the Chinese section sounded a changed note. They urged the throngs to avoid clashes with foreign defenders, pointing out the folly of inviting certain death by attacking, empty handed, armed foreigners.

Washington, June 4.—Conditions at Shanghai are regarded as exceedingly serious and indications are that the activities which already have resulted in riots and bloodshed will not be confined to that city, the state department was advised in dispatches from Edwin S. Cunningham, consul-general at Shanghai.

The department also was informed by Douglas Jenkins, consul-general at Canton, that fighting was reported near Wai Chow between the Yunnanese and Hsu's Cantonese, the latter being en route to Canton, and that the indications were there would be a serious battle in or near Canton within the next ten days.

BELIEVE TWO ARE IN MURDER CASE

New York Police Think Two Men Are Implicated in Murder of Miss Florence Kane.

New York, June 4.—The stories of two new witnesses today caused police to revert to their original theory that two men were involved in the murder of Miss Florence Kane, whose mutilated body was found in a vacant lot near her home in Brooklyn last Friday.

Frank and John Cardello, brothers, told police they believe William Brassfield, negro janitor, now held on a homicide charge in connection with the murder, was one of the men. They said pictures of him resemble a negro they saw about 11:30 o'clock the night of the murder, apparently exchanging whistle signals with an unseen man, near where Miss Kane was killed.

Christian Junker, a milkman, earlier had told of seeing two men carrying a large bundle to the vacant lot where Junker later found Miss Kane's body.

Miss Irene Coyle positively identified Brassfield as the negro she saw near the scene of the murder while her companion was not quite so certain.

WRONG WOMAN IS IN KIDNAP CASE

New Jersey Police Admit Restaurant Waitress Is Not Woman Sought in Kidnapping Case.

Philadelphia, June 4.—After two hours of questioning, New Jersey state police today admitted that Mrs. Florence Faunt, alleged "woman of mystery" in the famous kidnapping of Blakely Coughlin in 1920, was not the woman sought.

Mrs. Faunt, a waitress in a Philadelphia restaurant, said her son, George, who had been mistaken for the Coughlin baby at the time of the kidnapping, was her own child.

Augusto Pasquale, known as "the crank," who confessed to stealing and accidentally smothering the Coughlin baby, now serving a life sentence for kidnapping, has recanted his original explanation, according to the New Jersey state police, and insists that "a veiled woman in a limousine" was the actual kidnapper. The police quote Pasquale as saying that as far as he knew the baby was still alive.

"Soon after the Coughlin baby was stolen," said Mrs. Faunt today, "both Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin saw my son and both said he was not their child. If my boy were the kidnapped child I would long ago have returned him to his parents and collected the $12,000 which it was said was offered for the return of Blakely Coughlin."

The superintendent peered at Moya in his near-sighted fashion over the glasses on his nose. "Can't see that it matters much, Miss Dwight. I'm not worrying a bit about Jack Kilmeny, but, if Colter and you are, I'm willing to tell what I know on condition that you keep the facts to yourselves."

"I'll keep quiet if you haven't injured Jack in any way," Colter amended.

"We haven't. He was sound as a new dollar when I left him Tuesday night. Want to hear the particulars?"

"That's what I'm here for," snapped Colter.

Bleyer told the whole story so far as he knew it.

CHAPTER XIV

Spirit Rapping

Farquhar and Captain Kilmeny left next day for another short hunting trip. The captain had offered to give it up, but Moya had urged upon him that it would not be fair to disappoint his companion. He had gone reluctantly, because he saw that his fiancée was worried. His own opinion was that his cousin Jack had disappeared for reasons of his own.

Colter did not relax in his search. But as the days passed hope almost died within him. Jack had plenty of enemies, as an aggressive fighter in a new country always must have. His friend's fear was that some of them had decoyed Kilmeny to his death. The suspicions of the miner centered upon Peale and Trefoye, both because Jack had so recently had trouble with them and because they knew beforehand of his intention to remove the ore. But he could find no evidence upon which to base his feeling, though he and Curly, in company with a deputy sheriff, had put the Cornishmen through a grilling examination.

It had been understood that the young women should take a trip through the Never Quit before they left Goldbanks, but for one reason or another this had been postponed until after the captain and Farquhar had started on their final hunting expedition. The second afternoon after their departure was the one decided upon for the little adventure.

Verinder, with the extravagance that went hand in hand with an occasional astonishing parsimony, had ordered oilskin suits and waterproof boots made especially for his guests. A room was reserved for the young ladies at the mine, equipped for this one occasion to serve as a boudoir where they might dress in comfort.

The mine owner's guests donned, with a good deal of hilarious merriment, the short skirts, the boots and the rubber helmets. The costumes could not have been called becoming, but they were eminently suited for the wet, damp tunnels of the Never Quit.

After they had entered the cage it was a little terrifying to be shot so rapidly down into the blackness of the mine.

"Don't be afraid. It's quite safe," Bleyer told them cheerfully.

At the tenth level the elevator stopped and they emerged into an open space.

"We're going to follow this drift," explained the superintendent.

They sealed themselves in ore cars and were wheeled into a cavern lighted at intervals by electric bulbs. Presently the cars slowed down and the occupants descended.

"This way," ordered Bleyer. They followed in single file into a hot, damp tunnel, which dripped moisture in big drops from the roof upon a rough, uneven floor of stone and dirt where pools of water had occasionally gathered. The darkness increased as they moved forward, driven back by the candles of the men for a space scarce farther than they could reach with outstretched hands.

Moya, bringing up the rear, could hear Bleyer explain the workings to those at his heel. He talked of stopes, drifts, tunnels, wage scales, shifts, high-grade ore and other subjects that were as Greek to Joyce and India. The atmosphere was oppressively close and warm, and the oilskins that Moya wore seemed to weigh heavily upon her. She became aware with some annoyance at herself that a faintness was stealing over her brain and a mistiness over her eyes. To steady herself she stopped, catching at the rough wall for support. The others, unaware that she was not following, moved on. With a half articulate little cry she sank to the ground.

When she came to herself the lights had disappeared. She was alone in the most profound darkness she had ever known. It seemed to press upon her so ponderably as almost to be tangible. The girl was frightened. Her imagination began to conjure all sorts of dangers. Of cave-ins and explosions she had heard and read a good deal. Anything was possible in this thousand-foot-deep grave. In a frightened, ineffective little voice she cried out to her friends.

Instantly there came an answer—a faint tapping on the wall almost at her ear. She listened breathlessly, and caught again that faint tap—tap—tap—tap—tap. Instinctively her hand went out, groping along the wall until it fell upon a pipe. Even as she touched this the sound came again, and along with it the faintest of vibrations. She knew that somebody at a distance was hitting the pipe with a piece of quartz or metal.

Stooping, she found a bit of broken rock. Three times she tapped the pipe. An answer came at once.

Tap—tap—tap—tap—tap—tap—tap! She tried two knocks. Again the response of seven taps sounded. Four blows brought still seven. Why ways seven? She did not know, but she was greatly comforted to know that her friends were in communication with her. After all, she was not alone.

A light glimmered at the end of the tunnel and moved slowly toward her. Bleyer's voice called her name. Presently the whole party was about her with sympathetic questions and explanations.

She made light of the fainting attack, but Verinder insisted on getting her back to the upper air in spite of her protests. He had discovered that Joyce was quite ready to return to the sunlight, now that her curiosity was satisfied, very little of anything that was pleasant went a long way with Miss Eddon, and there was something about this underground tomb that rounded her strongly of an immense grief.

At dinner Verinder referred to the attack of vertigo. "Feel quite fit again, yes Dwight?"

"Quite thank you," Moya was a little irritated at the reference, because she was ashamed of having given way to physical weakness. "It was nothing. I was a goose. That's all."

Bleyer, a guest for the evening, descended the young woman from her own scorn. "It often takes people that way the first time, what with the heat and the closeness. I once knew a champion pugilist to keel over while he was going through a mine."

"Were you afraid when you found yourself alone?" Joyce asked.

"I was until you tapped."

India looked puzzled. "Tapped. What do you mean?"

"On the pipe."

"What pipe?"

"The one that ran through the tunnel."

Miss Kilmeny shook her head. "I didn't see anybody tap. Perhaps one of us touched it by chance."

"No. That couldn't be. The tap came seven times together, and after I had answered it seven times more."

"Seven times?" asked Bleyer quickly.

"Yes—seven. But, if you didn't tap, who did?"

"Sure it wasn't imagination?" Verinder suggested.

"Imagination! I tell you it was repeated again and again," Moya said impatiently.

"Spirit rapping," surmised Joyce lightly. "It doesn't matter, anyhow, since it served its work of comforting Moya."

"It might have been some of the workmen," Lady Farquhar guessed.

"Must have been," agreed Bleyer.

"And yet—we're not working that end of the mine now. The men had no business there. Odd that it was seven raps. That is call for help. It means danger."

A bell of warning began to toll in Moya's heart. It rang as yet no clear message to her brain, but the premonition of something sinister and deadly sent a sinking sensation through her.

Verinder sat up with renewed interest. "I say, you know—spirit rapping. Weren't you telling me, Bleyer, that there was a big accident there some years ago? Perhaps the ghosts of some of the lost miners were sending a message to their wives. Eh, what?"

"The accident was in the Golden Nugget, an adjoining mine. The property was pretty well worked out and has never been opened since the disaster."

The color had ebbed from Moya's lips. She was a sane young woman not given to nerves. But she had worried a great deal over the disappearance of Jack Kilmeny. This, coming on top of it, shook her composure. For she was fighting with the dread that the spirit of the man she loved had been trying to talk with her.

Joyce chattered gayly. "How weird! Moya, you must write an account of your experience for the Society for Psychological Research. Put me in it, please."

"Of course, it must have been some of the men, but I don't see—"

Moya interrupted the superintendent sharply. An intuition, like a flash of light, had illumined her brain. "Where does that pipe run, Mr. Bleyer?"

"Don't know. Maps of the workings at the office would show."

"Will you please find out?"

"Glad to look it up for you, Miss Dwight. I'm a little curious myself."

"I mean now—at once."

TRAFFIC SIGNALS

Four large electrically operated traffic signals at the four intersections of Center Square have become more of a hindrance than an advantage in regulating and conducting traffic, according to motorists of Gettysburg and some of the tourists who have passed through the seige of crossing the square when the signals are operating.

The question has been discussed, "Does Gettysburg need this automatic traffic signal system?" and the answer in most cases has been "No!"

It is seldom that a town the size of Gettysburg, with so many large outlets for traffic, without apparent congestion, institutes a traffic signal system such as is on trial here now.

"The only change the new system has invoked is to make traffic more congested than heretofore, instead of remedying any apparent defect," said one motorist.

Another declares, "Why halt traffic, all leading into and through the center of town, going in the four main directions, while traffic moving across the four main highways is not halted to permit crossing when the signals are opened?"

It appears that the signals do not help the situation any. In larger cities, where automatic signals are in use, the system stretches over a large area, halting traffic going in one direction, while cross-traffic moves. Then the period is reversed, and cross-traffic is halted, while forward traffic is moved.

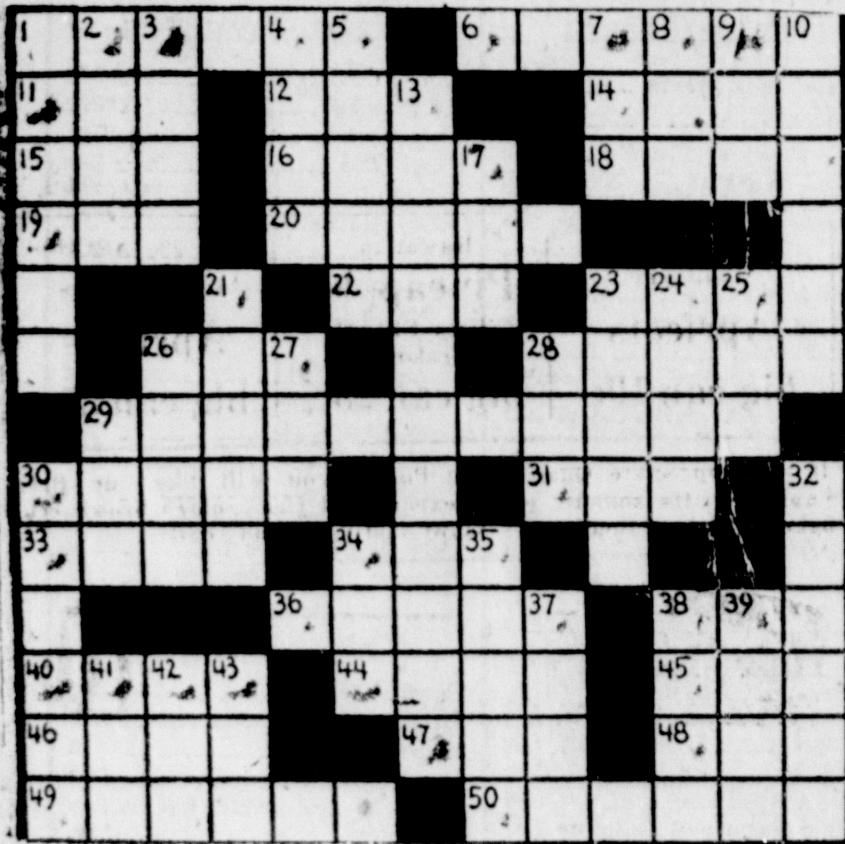

Gettysburg does not need the present traffic signal system. The system does not in any way increase safety; rather it tends to jam, block and congest vehicles, drivers of which are not forewarned of the halt in traffic ahead, hence the danger of collisions with the cars ahead.

Traffic congestion on Saturday nights was very ably handled last summer by Boy Scouts who are quite willing to continue the good work. We need the Scouts, but the electric signals are a general nuisance and the sooner they are removed the better it will be for the town and all concerned.

The innocence of the intention abates nothing of the mischief of the example. —Hall.

SPEAKING OF THE BABY

Being her daddy it may be I'm prejudiced and favor
Beyond good judgment's boundaries that little tyke's behavior;
But knowing what her mother was when I became her suitor,
I hold of all the baby girls there never was one cuter.

Her mother must have made them laugh when she was small like Janet.
And in that time I fancy she both owned the house and ran it;
She surely had a thousand charms the old folks lives to sweeten;
But lovely though she must have been our baby has her beaten.

I am not fond of boastfulness, myself I seldom mention,
To what I've done or what I own I'd call no man's attention.
But as her daddy I declare without one if or maybe
We have in her I love so much a most unusual baby.

The light of love is in her eye, there's music in her chatter
There's joy in everything she does, strangers stand staring at her!
And though I'm prejudiced of course, on all this earthly planet
I claim of all the lovely babes, the loveliest is Janet.

We cannot keep her three years old—I say it oft in sorrow—
Age has a place for her to fill in some not far tomorrow,
And so for her I have one hope, dearer than every other,
When she grows up I pray she'll be as lovely as her mother.

TWICE IN THIS WOMAN'S LIFE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her from Sickness to Health

Ellensburg, Washington. — "When I was first coming into womanhood I suffered terribly every month. My mother did everything she could think of, so she took me to several doctors and they only helped me a little. Mother was talking to another lady about my condition and she told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me." — Mrs. WILLIAM CARVER, R. F. D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Washington.

bottles and at the end of the first month I was much better, so I kept on taking it until I had no more pains. When I got married and had my first child I was in terrible pain so that it was impossible for me to do my housework. I thought of how the Vegetable Compound had been of so much benefit to me when I was a girl, so I went to People's Drug Store and got six bottles. I am sure did help me and I will take it. I am a well woman today and I can't say too much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me." — Mrs. WILLIAM CARVER, R. F. D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Washington.

Rheumatism

Leaves You Forever

Asserts James H. Allen, Who Drove Out Rheumatic Poisons After Being Crippled for Years

Mr. James A. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. "The blessed relief this marvelous prescription quickly gives has made for it thousands of friends," says People's Drug Store, who has been appointed agent in your city. It is Mr. Allen's own discovery.—adv.

THE GREAT ATLANTIC & PACIFIC TEA CO. JUST AROUND THE CORNER FROM EVERYBODY

A Letter From One of Our Patrons Who Is Convinced That Our Mammouth Day and Night Sale Is Worth While Attending

Why this Sale is a Great Help to the Buying Public and Why Harry Viener's Store is the Best Place in Town to do Your Trading.

FIRST, I would say, this sale is a great help to the buying public because of the low prices that Harry Viener has made possible by his Day and Night Sale.

By selling at cost for nine days and nights, he enables the buying public to secure more goods for the dollar, and thereby, in case of a scarcity of money, the poor can have what they would otherwise have to do without.

Why Harry Viener's Store is the Best Place in Town to do Your Trading.

FIRST, the ever-ready, smiling, obliging and courteous clerks make it very pleasant for any one to select their needed goods.

They are ever-ready and never too tired to show their various lines of goods.

SECOND, Harry Viener's "square dealing" makes it another reason why you care to return to the place where you have had satisfaction and a square deal.

The writer knew Harry Viener when he used to call around with a pack strapped upon his back, then later, with a carriage, and now, we see him proprietor of one of the finest stores in town and doing a large business.

Harry Viener HAS succeeded. Why? Because of his honest and fair dealing.

(Signed) Mrs. David Orner, Biglerville, Pa., R. D. 2.

Cow is Backbone of Many Industries Declares Wisconsin University Expert

Milk, butter and cheese are but a part of the contribution that the dairy cow makes to the welfare of humanity. But for her we would be without many of the conveniences and luxuries that mark human life today.

That was the tribute paid the dairy cow before the Radio Farm School of the Blue Valley Creamery Institute by K. L. Hatch, assistant director of agricultural extension at Wisconsin University.

"We are apt to think that the dairy cow has fulfilled her mother function when she has supplied the milk necessary for the normal growth and healthy development of the child," Mr. Hatch said. "But she does more than this. The dairy cow is constantly with us, although the products for which she is responsible we often pass by without recognition.

"If we separate the butterfat in milk from the other constituents we have left skim milk. If we separate the solids of skim milk, we get sugar, albumin and casein. The milk sugar is largely used in food for infants and in the preparation of medicine, while the albumin is used in the preparation of foods for young animals. In drying the curds of skim milk we get casein, which in the form of cottage cheese is one of the most wholesome of foods. In this form it has many uses in the arts. Mixed with pigment or lime, it has myriad uses in office, shop and factory.

"The business man on his way to work stops at the hotel cigar counter and rolls dice made of casein. He opens his morning's mail with a letter opener 'made of milk,' lights a cigarette held in place by a casein holder, and settles himself to work with his foot under a desk held together by casein glue. He sharpens his pencil with a casein handled knife and signs his letters with a fountain pen made of casein. At the close of the day he enjoys a quiet game of poker, using casein chips, while he draws smoke through the steam of his moerschau pipe, made of casein.

"His wife or sweetheart starts the day with combing her hair with a casein comb and polishing her nails with a casein polisher, while boiling the morning coffee in a pot with a casein handle. She then dons her hat with its ornamental casein buckle, fastens her cloak with its casein button, and turns off the electric light with its casein switch. Her afternoon is spent either at bridge with its casein sized cards, or shuffling the casein made pieces of Mah Jong. And when she takes her nap her eyes are soothed by the soft casein colors on the bedroom wall.

"Hats off to the dairy cow!"

Arraign Alleged Pickford Plotters

(By Associated Press.)
Los Angeles, June 4.—Three men charged with plotting to kidnap Mary Pickford, film star, will appear before a grand jury here Friday as a result of complaint issued Tuesday by the district attorney's office.

Bail has been set at $50,000 each. Whether there was any evidence of a plot or any evidence of "a frame up" or whether no plot existed in the alleged attempt to abduct the screen actress will be determined by the grand jury.

A man's first care should be to avoid the reproaches of his own heart; his next, to escape the censures of the world.

Over Seventy Years of Success

Issues Bulletin On Rail Crossing

With the opening of the careful crossing campaign on the railroads of the company, Elisha Lee, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad in charge of operation, issued the following bulletin to employees of the company:

"The number of automobiles in use this year will probably reach twenty million and crossing accidents will, as a matter of course, show a marked increase unless automobile drivers use greater care when approaching and driving over railroad highway crossings. This we believe the bulk of drivers will do if the danger involved is made clear to them.

Elimination Impractical
"The elimination of all grade crossings in the United States by overhead or underground construction would cost at least nineteen billion dollars. On the Pennsylvania railroad alone,

Try This Today For BAD BREATH

Now that every thinking person in town has on hand a bottle of Kojene, the safe and delightful antiseptic, we want them to know that it will banish bad breath—no matter what the cause.

Put a teaspoonful in a glass of water—rinse the mouth and gargle the throat with half of it—then drink the balance.

On this night and morning. Many times bad breath comes from the stomach and Kojene, the powerful yet harmless antiseptic, will purify it and quickly make it sweet and clean. Kojene is having a sensational sale the country over because it is a real antiseptic.

As an antiseptic, it is four times as powerful as carbolic acid and much more powerful than Bichloride of Mercury.

And to those people who are using ordinary washes that were good thirty years ago, let us say that Kojene is seventy-five times more powerful than these old timers and a 60 cent bottle will make half a gallon of a supremely efficient mouth wash—60 cents at People's Drug Store and druggists all over America.—adv.

the cost would amount to nearly a billion.

"The only other means of preventing crossing accidents is to see that all the rules of the railroad designed to prevent accidents are obeyed and that all reasonable means are employed to impress upon automobile drivers the necessity for care at crossings. Let us do everything within our power along these lines so that we may have a full measure of success in this campaign."

THE EQUIPMENT BEHIND YOUR TELEPHONE

ON DECEMBER 31st, last, there were 899,949 telephones served by this company in Pennsylvania.

The cost of the telephone plant and equipment as shown on its books was $191,400,000.

$212 per telephone, on an average, divided as follows:

Land and buildings	$28.67	per telephone
Switchboard and other central office equipment	58.53	" "
Outside plant, poles, cables, wires, subscribers' equipment, etc.	121.03	" "
Supplies, furniture, repair shop equipment, motor vehicles, tools, etc.	3.77	" "

Total $212.00 per telephone

Ten years ago the average was but $129 per telephone. Such has been the effect of the rising cost of materials on the telephone plant during the period of its greatest growth, despite a thousand and one economies and improvements in engineering and construction.

But perhaps what is of most interest to the user of telephone service is the volume of equipment behind the telephone instrument itself.

Not merely a pair of wires and a few switches at the other end, but a great volume and complication of apparatus, much of it as delicately adjusted as a watch.

And a keen, twenty-four-hour-a-day organization of 22,000 skilled men and women.

PENNSYLVANIA THIRD, EXPORTS

Ran Close to $300,000 Mark in Total Value During Last Year; Iron and Steel Lead All.

Washington, D. C., June 4.—With merchandise exports to foreign countries running close to the three hundred million dollar mark in total value during the past year, Pennsylvania ranked third among all the fifty-two states and territories of the United States in the race for exports markets, it was learned at the U. S. department Monday.

The Keystone state shipped merchandise valued at $293,299,153 to foreign markets during the year, it was stated.

Iron and steel led all other commodities in Pennsylvania's export trade in 1924, and amounted to $65,500,710 in value. These were closely followed by coal shipments, which were refined petroleum products, valued at $44,217,426, and machinery, excluding agricultural machinery, totaling $31,743,076. Foreign shipments of wheat, amounting to $13,759,964; leather, $6,360,662; vehicles, $5,282,978; cotton manufactures, $4,634,688; sulphate of ammonia, $2,135,892; and agricultural machinery, valued at $912,651, followed in order.

The eleven highest states in exports last year shipped merchandise having a total value of more than a hundred million dollars. They were Texas, with exports of $737,218,927; New York, $731,593,502; Pennsylvania, $293,299,153; Illinois, $239,314,270; California, $234,684,210; New Jersey, $233,921,264; Louisiana, $222,847,224; Michigan, $177,876,654; Virginia, $150,198,225; Ohio, $133,559,352; and Massachusetts, with merchandise valuations of $114,418,430. They make it a principle of their irreligion outwardly to conform to any religion. —Edmund Burke.

"Why! He's Nothing But Skin and Bones" "Marry Him? Never"

"Quit kidding me, Agnes; when I get ready to land a man he's got to be a real man with plenty of good healthy flesh on his bones."

"Of course, I dance with Ed; He's a good enough fellow and I just feel sorry for him, but no skinny, hollow cheeked, spindle shanked lath is going to sail the voyage of life with me."

Cheer up, Ed—things aren't as bad as they look to you right now. Many hundreds of skinny, gaunt, emaciated men looked even worse than you do till someone told them about McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets (the new way to take Cod Liver Oil) and how it would put pounds of good firm, healthy flesh on their bones in just a few weeks.

Nothing like these health creating, weight producing tablets for skinny, underweight men, as thousands can testify. Start to take them today—60 tablets—60 cents at Peoples Drug Store or any real druggist anywhere in North or South America.

And listen: If they don't put 5 pounds of good flesh on you in 30 days, get your money back—that's fair enough, but be sure—very sure that you get McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—the original and genuine. Adv.

Chicago, June 4.—A coroner's jury Wednesday returned a verdict that Mrs. Belle Owen, 55, wife of a wealthy realtor of Oak Park, was shot to death in her home early in the morn-

Awakened by a noise he entered the room to find his wife struggling with one of two intruders, one of the man's fingers in her mouth.
